

Dear FCC:

I am opposed to any changes in Indiana's no-call list that would allow banks or lending institutions or their subsidiaries to contact my home. Indiana's no-call list has been one of the best things our government has done to protect the privacy of our family. Our time at home together as a family is too precious to spend answering phone calls from a company that wants to sell us something or otherwise offer their services. If I need services from a bank or other subsidiary, trust me, I know how to contact them. Please don't let them call us, we'll call them on our own time when we need them.

Thank you,

Jim Miller
